DETAILED ACTION

Response to the Amendment

1. Claims 1-17 are presented for examination. Claims 18-33 have been withdrawn due to the nonelected claims and due to the response filed on 6/22/2004.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Edson (US Patent 6,526,581).

As to claims 1 and 11, Edson teaches the invention including a remote controlled system comprising: a remote controller; and a general-purpose computer coupled to communicate with the remote controller and a controlled device to facilitate remote control of the controlled device by the remote controller is taught as a gateway providing an open loop software interface to control in-home communications and to enable in-home devices of various divergent technologies to selectively access external communication features as shown in figure 1 (see, abstract and figures 1-2 and col. 3, lines 46-59); a first device having a user interface (UI); and a facilitator communicatively coupled to the first and a second device to facilitate remote control of the second device by the first device, the facilitator providing UI information to the first device that may be used by a user to enter control data for controlling the second device to perform an action, the facilitator translating the control data received from the first device into commands that are sent to the second device to effectuate the action intended by the user is taught as the instructions of the gateway and/or the device specific interfaces as may be carried on or installed in one or more computer readable medium wherein the program code is for use in a system for providing data communications within the premises and to wide area network links (see, figures 1-2 and col. 4, lines 45-51 and col. 7, lines 44-57).

As to claims 2-6 and 11-13, Edson teaches the remote controller has a display and one or more input mechanisms that enable user input, and embodied as a cellular phone, wherein the controlled device is embodied as a home device selected from a group of home devices comprising a television, a stereo, a radio, a VCR, a set top box, lighting controller, and alarm controller and wherein the general-purpose computer is embodied as a desktop computer wherein the general-purpose computer runs an open platform operating system (see, figures 1-4 and col. 4, lines 36-50, "The in-home media.....access to wide area network links." and col. 7, line 44 to col. 8, line 11, "The PC preferably provides a user interface to allow monitoring...a connected device.").

As to claims 7-8 and 14-15, Edson teaches remote controlled system of claim 1, wherein the general-purpose computer is configured to expose a universal plug and play (UPnP) application program interface (API) through which the remote controller and the controlled device may make calls to the general-purpose computer and wherein the general-purpose computer is configured to communicate with the remote controller and the controlled device using a wireless communication protocol (see, figures 1-2 and col. 7, line 44 to col. 8, line 11, "The PC preferably provides a user interface to allow monitoring...a connected device.").

As to claims 9-10, Edson teaches remote controlled system further comprising an application program stored and executed on the general-purpose computer, the application program directing the computer to provide UI information to the remote controller that may be used by a user to enter control data for controlling the controlled device and to translate the control data received from the remote controller into commands that are sent to the second device to effectuate an action intended by the user and multiple remote controllers and multiple controlled devices, the general-purpose computer is coupled to communicate with the multiple remote controllers and the multiple controlled devices to facilitate remote control of any one of the controlled devices by any one of the remote controllers (see, col. 4, lines 45-59, "the program code....compatible with a predetermined application program interface." and col. 9, lines 15-32).

As to claims 16-17, Edson teaches the remote controlled system of claim 11, wherein the UI of the first device comprises one or more input components to permit user entry of the control data, the UI information being associated with the input components so that selection of a particular input component by the user results in generation of particular control data and wherein the UI of the first device includes a display and the UI information includes text strings for display on the UI display (see, abstract and figures 1-2 and col. 4, lines 36-50 and col. 7, lines 44-57 and col. 10, lines 7-23).

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

4. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Ramesh B. Patel whose telephone number is 703-308-6673. The examiner can normally be reached on M-Th; 7:00 AM to 5:30 PM.
